

intensive course on

ECONOMY, CULTURE AND POWER

Department of Geography, University of Turku

October 26.–28.2011 (first lecture at 10.15, Room 412)

NOTE: the course will continue as a session during the Geography Days

Professor

SUSAN M. ROBERTS

Department of Geography
University of Kentucky, USA

lectures on

- (1) Making Markets (the work - including cultural work - that goes into creating and sustaining capitalist "markets" and market relations)
- (2) Relations between development studies and geography

Professor

JOHN PLØGER

Department of Environmental, Social and Spatial Change
Roskilde University, Denmark

lectures on

- Performative urban space, affective urbanism
– experiencing the ephemeral

Lecturer

MUSTAFA DIKEÇ

Royal Holloway
University of London, UK

lectures on

to be confirmed later

The intensive course will be based on lectures and discussions. Short (10–15 minutes) paper presentations are possible during the discussion sessions. The course is intended to doctoral students, but also the students who are preparing their master theses concerning the course themes are welcome to participate the course. The course is free, and The Geography Graduate School will pay the accommodation and travel expenditures of the participants (as much as possible). The deadline for participation to the course and for abstracts is October 17, 2011.

For further information (more detailed description of the course content and possible readings material suggested by the lecturers) get in contact with professor Harri Andersson (e-mail harri.andersson@utu.fi, tel 02 333 5589 or 050 553 2718)